ADMB Accepting Applications for Funding Proposals

Cheyenne – The Wyoming Animal Damage Management Board is accepting applications for predator management projects that would enhance wildlife populations, improve public health and safety, or strengthen predator management using ADMB funds.

Individuals, organizations, or government agencies may apply. The board seeks proposals that reflect a cooperative, integrated approach. Applications must be received by noon on June 15.

Examples of projects that the ADMB has funded to date include:

- Coyote den locating by the use of remote sensing technology
- Coyote birth control research
- Predator effects on Sage Grouse
- Three wildlife enhancement projects through the management of predators in Carbon, Niobrara and Weston Counties
- Research in the development of new humane canine trapping techniques
- Research in the relationship between mountain lions and mule deer
- Research in the relationship between mountain lions and mule deer
- Research in the aversive conditioning of predators to prevent livestock depredation
- Predator management on Whiskey Mountain to enhance bighorn sheep and lamb survival

The application form requires that the geographic size and public benefit of the project be added to the form and that a map of the area of the proposal be included in the application package.

For further information about the ADMB or a copy of the application, visit the ADMB website at www.wyadmb.com or call Hank Uhden at (307) 777-6433.
